

Sustaining Effective Partnership in
Nuclear Materials Regulation

Dafna Silberfeld, Director (Acting)

Division of Materials Safety, Security, State, & Tribal Programs

Office of Nuclear Material Safety and Safeguards

A little about me....

- Family is from Uruguay
- Grew up in suburbs of New York City
- Pursued Degrees in Public Policy and Social Work
- Have been with the NRC for 15 years
- This week is my 1-year anniversary with MSST!

The structure of our partnership reflects a shared commitment to public health, safety, and security—rooted in mutual respect and trust.

While our roles may differ, our mission is united: to protect people and the environment through effective regulation and oversight.

We've built something durable, resilient, and responsive—and we continue to grow together as new challenges and technologies emerge.

As always, our focus remains on collaboration—not just coordination.

Collaboration That Makes A Difference

Communication & Participation

How We Stay Connected:

- Monthly calls and briefings with OAS and CRCPD leadership
- Working group discussions on regulatory and guidance development
- NMP Champion Chats and Government-to-Government meetings for broader engagement
- IMPEP reviews and MRB meetings that include direct state input

Why Your Participation Matters:

- Ensures that policies reflect real-world implementation needs
- Promotes national consistency through shared understanding
- Builds confidence in regulatory decisions
- Fosters a responsive, collaborative environment

Your contributions are vital to the strength and credibility of the National Materials Program.

Agreement State participation in Management Review Boards (MRBs):
Your insights ensure fair, balanced, and transparent evaluation

Engagement in Working Groups and Standing Committees:
You shape the future of our regulatory framework by lending your expertise to the development of rules, policies, and guidance.

We deeply value your partnership, your time, and your commitment. Together, we are making smarter, more effective decisions for the public we serve.

Agreement State Participation in Decision-Making

None of this would be possible without the dedication of our Regional State Agreement Officers and the staff of the State Agreement and Liaison Program Branch. Their continued commitment and hard work are critical to building and maintaining strong partnerships, promoting regulatory consistency, and advancing our shared mission of protecting public health and safety. Their contributions are essential to the continued success of the National Materials Program.

Thank You!
